CARNIVAL

The carnival men
cry out and sing
Toss the ring,
shoot a round.
The ferris wheels
sway and swing,
The carousel horses
plunge around.
In a circle
they come and go,
And here you are,
says the carnival man,
Walking around
to catch the show.
Which is show
and which is you?

Carnival confusion is, as always, evident on the international scene. Countries conduct foreign affairs as we drive bumper cars, full speed ahead without understanding what we do or who we affect. The assassination of Anwar Sadat pours more oil on the already burning Middle East. In Europe, fears grow that Reagan's strong anti-Soviet stand will bring war. The whole world watches Poland with admiration and anxiety as the brave members of Solidarity stand up to their Russian colleagues.

Like the carnival Scrambler, American politics is constantly changing direction. The election of Ronald Reagan heralded the beginning of the most conservative presidency in 20 years. His promise—to revive the sinking economy by balancing the budget and cutting income taxes. In the center ring is David Stockman, OMB director. With sleight of hand quicker than a magician's, he makes entire federal programs disappear. But military buildup, including expensive projects such as the B-1 and the MX, threatens to burst the budget at its seams. With baited breath, we watch this highwire balancing act, hoping it will be successful.

Chicago is a carnival of culture right next door. It draws us like a magnet. A weekend downtown becomes a must—shopping at Water Tower Place, lunch at Pizzeria Uno, and a play at the Schubert. With the success of the Sting, we can forget the Bears (baby and grown) and feel a pride in "our" town, even though we discover we must break a five for train fare to get there. Between Chicago politics and rising inflation, the RTA and the Chicago schools stand poised on the brink of financial disaster. John Cardinal Cody also faces troubled times, riding the tight wire of troubled finance, while Jane Byrne, with a spotlight all her own, rides the roller coaster of public opinion from crisis to crisis.

What happens in the world around us is often beyond our scope and control, but Lake Forest High School is our own carnival, our own show. From the frosh Buzzy Bee to the senior American Eagle, we master the increasingly difficult twists and turns of our high school lives. This year brings change as usual. A new track is being added at East and an old Western favorite appears in danger of being closed. But change presents challenge and challenge brings growth.

EVENTS

HOMECOMING 1981

The carousel of time brought us another homecoming this year, but it was truly a horse of quite a different color. The long-lived tradition of a parade and floats was banished, to be replaced by a whole schedule of new ideas.

The Scouts ceremoniously roasted a Bison at the Friday night bonfire, led by "Chief" Tommy Meyers. The competitive spirit was retained through the door, window and hall decorating contests, with the class of '82 finally capturing a title (best wall) before graduation. Lunch time activities included a balloon toss and tug-of-war, (with the out-tugged juniors demanding a rematch).

Beth Bruckman, Homecoming Queen, reigned over the all-school pep rally, considered by most to be a highly successful spirit raiser.

Due to rain, halftime activities at Saturday's football game against the Bisons were limited, but Lake Forest was victorious, winning 6-0.

The day concluded with an informal dance, living up to its name, "Morp" (truly the opposite of prom).

Theatre West was proud to present as its fall play Enid Bagnold's "The Chalk Garden." The plot concerned an undisciplined child who was transformed into a beautiful young lady with the aid of a very special woman whose story also unfolded in the course of the play. Not only did the cast have to memorize their lines, but also the English dialect of the play's setting.

A carnival atmosphere prevailed as "Godspell" marked the premier of an entirely new lighting system and reworked sound system. Rehearsing for weeks in near darkness, the show emerged from a confusing morass of broken wires, old dimmers, undisciplined fog, extended lunchtimes, and nonfunctioning spotlights into a real celebration of technical wizardry, under the direction of Gary Pennella. Four crew veterans were actually in the cast, while the rest of the crew stayed out of sight. Eric Schnell took charge of a very large One-Act crew. And Gary used his considerable influence, good looks and not unattractive knees to assemble an enthusiastic group.

This year's production of Jon-Michael Tebelak's musical, "Godspell", was an outstanding piece of original artistic device. With the great help of Jay Criche and student director Adam Lazarus, "Godspell" combined special effects, complicated dialogue and beautifully performed song and dance numbers into a moving play. Donned in white, Billy Dallman was a humorous and sensitive Jesus Christ. The rest of the 22 actors and actresses generated energy and talent through one big production number after another. All remained on stage for virtually the whole play, proving themselves to be very versatile performers; each strong in voice, dance and drama. Sandy Ragsdale choreographed the musical, using the aisles to surround the audience in music and song. As our "savior" was carried out, we wondered about the true nature of the forces beyond. And, keeping in line with the original story, Jesus rose from the bed to be back in school on Monday morning.

We all know that school can be a pretty frightening experience at times, with final exams, semester grades and tyrannical teachers. This year we received an extra thrill for our money as we witnessed the various assortment of creatures wandering the halls on Halloween. The old standby ghouls were there, along with a cast of originals. The costume didn't matter—anything to frighten the day was welcome.

Inaugurated two years ago, the student-directed One Act Play program gives students experience in planning, producing, designing, and publicizing theatrical works. This year's plays were Ernest Kinoy's "Good-bye to the Clown" directed by Betticlare Irminger; Alan Ayckbourn's "Ernie's Incredible Illucinations," directed by Becky Kuchar; and "T.S. Eliot's "The Love Song of J. Alfred Prufrock," adapted for the stage and directed by Amelia Bornstein.

At press time, Director Jay Criche was preparing for the Mar. 4 opening of the Winter Play, "The Effect of Gamma Rays on Man-in-the-Moon Marigolds." The drama, which playwright Paul Zindel calls "an affirmation of life," concerns the embittered widow Beatrice Hunsdorfer (Amelia Bornstein); her high-strung daughter Ruth (Becky Kuchar); her younger daughter Matilda (Sue West), a brilliant science student; their boarder (Betticlare Irminger); and Matilda's scientific competitor (Henry Wimmer). Once again David Miller designed and technical-directed his all-star crew.

During Spirit Week '82

Once again this year, with finals and first semester behind us, the high school hosted its third annual Spirit Week. Aided by charimen Brian Addy and Beth McElwain, Student Councils at West and East put together their own array of themes. Among these were the class themes of: fifties frosh, soph. slumber, jun. junkies and senior superheroes. Prizes were awarded for the best costume of the day, and the week ended with a basketball game and dance. Hopefully more kids will begin to participate in the week, making it a welcome bright spot in the mid-winter blues.

English

The English dept. teaches us the "true meaning" of many things. This knowledge comes in handy at places like a side-show, where people use big words (also taught by this dept.) because they are trying to impress us and make us think that things or people are better than they really are. But WE know better. So remember, this magnificent literary achievement you are now holding was brought to you by a sagacious, expressive group of editors and staff at an extremis of creativity.

Our Carnival wouldn't be able to function at all without the help of the Math department. Who else can add up the profits, or make sure that every angle of each ride is functioning smoothly? After all, as any of our esteemed teachers will prove, a rollercoaster is really just an over-sized set of sine and cosine curves.

The S.S. Dept. teaches us to deal with any situation. For example: as you were buying popcorn, a man picked your pocket. Sociology would help you understand that man's point of view. Economics would say that he did it because of inflation, and History would explain that people act just as they always have.

We've finally arrived at the nostalgia section of this year's FOREST TRAILS. All of these members of the faculty are still here at LFHS, and we're fairly sure that everyone will recognize them. However, in the tradition of carnival guessing games, we've only given their initials as a means of identifying them. We hope that everyone has fun with this little idea, including our gracious faculty.

Young Idea

Under the guidance of Mrs. Alva Lowey, these students produce a literary magazine of remarkable quality. Between the covers of YOUNG IDEA can be found short stories, poems one-act plays, fine illustrations, and photography. This year's Editor, Cindy Hoaglund, leads students in all phases of production, from critiquing to the actual paste-up of individual pages.

Writing the program for the 1981-82 carnival of events were the editors and staff of THE FOREST SCOUT. This year's staff was unique in that it was comprised mainly of juniors. However, editor-in-chief Karla Schulte stressed professionalism in format and content. The whole team pulled together to produce a very polished school paper.

FORENSICS is made up of actors and actresses, speakers and poetry readers. Aside from the hours of individual rehearsal, these dedicated club members also spent Saturdays traveling to various schools to attend National Forensic League competitions. They participated all the way up to the state level. Under Mr. Ferry's direction, they did a fine job of representing LFHS showmanship.

RADIO CLUB is the group act responsible for WLFH. Not only did these deejays provide high quality music eight periods a day, but they also kept us posted on student announcements. This year Gary Pennella served as program director, with Tim McMillan as coordinator, under the sponsorship of Ms. Elmore and Mr. Miller.

PHILOSOPHY CLUB

MATH CLUB

Clockwise from top: Stephanie Green, Vice-Pres.; Todd Peterson; Eileen Kennedy, Pres.; Julie Jenson; Marilyn Burke; Diane Nielsen; Ben Tang;

"But what does it all mean?" ask the members of Philosophy Club. This group concerned itself with the issues behind the carnival scenes, and met once a week in Mr. Hawkins' room to discuss them. Some topics raised were God, love relationships, and boredom. The lively exchange of ideas allowed club members to walk away from every meeting with something to think about.

A carnival of numbers! That describes MATH CLUB'S activities this year. With Mr. Doubet as club advisor, students from all grades who enjoy math had the chance to participate in the Atlantic-Pacific Mathematics competition. Speakers addressing such subjects as Rubik's cube and Boolean Algebra were also featured events.

Top: Mr. Hawkins, Marilyn Burke, Eve Sladon, Kim Zeller, Dan Purdy, Jeremy Dick. Middle: Valerie de Roche, Tracy Monson, Bob Birkenes, Stuart Walker, On floor: Steve Petran, Julie Kompass, Paige Waters, Lynn Bloink.

The goals of DEBATE, according to club sponsor Mr. Richards, are a) to enhance one's speaking ability, b) to become articulate, c) to learn to think logically, and mostly d) to enjoy oneself. LFHS debaters, a small traveling circus in themselves, accomplished all these goals, attending tournaments at U of I, U of W, NIU, Bradley and Northwestern.

The groups on these two pages are the special groups formed out of the larger Forester Singers and Band, both of which meet as classes during the school day. These groups practice before and after school and perform on the stage, in the gym, and at various train stations and shopping centers at holiday time. They are interested in the music theory of their various disciplines as well as in performance.

The Jazz Band performed at all home basketball games and in January participated in and competed at an all-area Jazz Festival at Glenbrook North High School.

Again this year the Madrigals sponsored their always popular Madrigal Dinner, a pre-Christmas evening in Merrie Olde Englande. The singing, the dancing, the juggling, and of course the food, all contributed to a festive evening.

Insights, Dungeons and Dragons

"Dungeons and Dragons" once known as Book Club meets fifth and/or sixth period in the Reading Lab at West. The club attracts devotees of science and fantasy fiction who read and discuss books of that genre and play the D & D game to its figurative death.

Here they are, the directors of this year's carnival of events: our student council representatives. The council's major focus this year was on faculty-student cooperation. They formulated rules for a student-monitored study hall, established a student advisory board, conducted a contest for a mural design for the cafeteria, and approved three new clubs: Ad Club, Stamp and Zig-Zag. The council, along with SAC, was responsible for many of the new Homecoming innovations, and Beth McElwain and Brian Addy directed Spirit Week, which again proved to be a huge success.

Tom Myers and Mark Samuels coached the sophomores to a fine 6-2-1 record. Co-Captains Kevin Kawula and Tarn Sublett along with Joe Stein winner Brad Watson anchored a strong defense which was unscored upon in conference play. This team along with promising freshman should supply the Varsity with some solid power in the coming years.

The Lake Forest Scouts Varsity Football Team, led by Captain Jerry Cleary, enjoyed a highly successful 8 and 2 season. Coach Barry regained the Conference Championship with a 6 and 1 conference mark. The Conference Championship enabled the team to qualify for the IHSA Class 5A playoffs. In the first round the Scouts were defeated by eventual Class 5A runner-up Deerfield.

Jerry Cleary, Ed Giangorgi, Jim Meyer, Mark Marwede, Chris McDermand, Blair Nagel, Doug Pond and Scott Stacke paced the Scouts throughout the season and were named All-Conference.

The Wayne Whitmore Lineman Award and the Joe Stein Award went to Ed Giangorgi. The manager was Bob Franzese.

The Scouts defeated Waukegan East and Deerfield in Sub-Sectional play and advanced to Sectional play where they were defeated in a hard fought match by Glenbrook North 1-0, to end their season as Sectional Runner Up.

All-Conference Players included Rich Adams, Graham Cook, Tom Kammerer, Tim McMillin, Steve Milke and Stefano Sorio. Milke and Sorio were named to the All-Sectional Team and Milke received All-State Honors.

High School All-American Joe Stein Award winner Steve Milke will not be here next season, but the starting juniors and sophomores should keep the team strong next year.

In addition three team members were selected for Team Illinois, which selects the best players in the state. Team members elected were sophomore Sue Petran and seniors Kim Herrmann and Wendy Willms.

The Junior Varsity finished with an impressive 10-1 record for the season. Co-captains were Hilary Junkin and Janine Klimczak, who was also the most valuable player. Most improved player for the season was sophomore Sue Meyer.

Led by seniors Ryan Stoll, Dave Wisner, Dan Helberg, Tom Lombardi and junior George Brennan, the cross-country team achieved a 9-2 dual meet season. They won the Rolling Meadows Invitational, and placed third in the Lake County, Conference, and District meets. Ryan Stoll was undefeated until the State Meet, where he was nosed out of the state title by seven-tenths of a second. Stoll, Wisner, and Helberg were named to the All-Lake County team.

The girls' cross country team earned its reputation as the North Suburban Conference's most improved team with a second place finish. With a conference record of five wins and one loss, the team's "fun" runs, hill work, speed work, and weight training clearly paid off. Although the team failed to make it to sectionals Alexa Follensbee did go as an individual runner. Cross-country is not a team sport the usual sense of the word; however, the talent, hard work, and enthusiasm of all the girls were essential to the team's fine performance.

Pom-pon girls raise spirit as they raise their pom-pons.

Everyone credits the sports teams with a lot of practice time, but too often we forget the hours the "spirit squads" put in off the field to help us maintain the carnival atmosphere. The Scouts opened the 1981-82 Basketball campaign with readiness and enthusiasm following a strong third place finish last year. Leading the way were Senior Lettermen Greg Hanrahan, Brian Havey, John Trkla and John Petersen. Other contributing Seniors were Obie O'Brien, Stu Veech, Kerry Bradford and Ken Howard. Sporting a controlled fast break offense and tough match-up zone defense, the Scouts got off to a fine start.

The team's lack of strength and size inside began to take its toll as the season progressed. The effort and enthusiasm continued despite these setbacks and a lot of progress was made by the juniors in preparation for next year.

Attempting new feats

Not afraid to fall

Lake Forest High School's Outdoor Education program gives students an opportunity to apply new skills while at the same time learning to work together as a group. Units covered include: biking, canoeing, rock climbing and repelling, survival skills (i.e. cooking without a micro-wave), riflery, and cross country skiing.

The Devil's Lake field trip highlights the course each semester by giving the students a chance to try their talents on climbs and repels of varying difficulties. Aside from the bad jokes and occasionally bad weather, the trip holds challenges for all. Unfortunately, H. Keller was "on-belay" and missed this year's picture.

Headed by Skip Atwell, the course requires a sincere and interested approach, along with a willingness to always at least try.

Yearbook Editorial Board—Slayers of deadlines. Without this group of students, the book would not be possible. Their dedication and willingness to sacrifice weekends are what make "Forest Trails" great. And then there's the "real" editorial board, as seen on the facing page. Todd, who will stop at nothing to succeed, engages in some back-stabbing; but Greg is too engrossed in plans for his next trip to Wisco to notice. Meanwhile, Steve and Stacey are "developing" some kinky ideas. "Most difficult to get a picture of" Lisa Considine finally turned up in our archives. And the Asst. Editor in Charge of Copy has unearthed a relic from Mrs. Silber's past. Whitney isn't at all self-conscious about having her picture taken, but Sarah is skeptical. And finally, the only serious (?) board member, Betsy, asks Mrs. Silber the eternal question, "What is a good caption for this picture?"

The Photographers of Forest Trails: Becky Kuchar, Lisa Meigs, Steven Petran, Jennifer Pochos, Gordon Radford, Tim Welton. Photographic Assistant: Erica Vargas. Special thanks to James Benton.
